

BEER GLASS

A glass of this design appears in the sketches of John Greene, a member of the Glass Sellers Company. The sketch, dated 1667-73, is accompanied by a text stating, “3 dozen plaine for beer, The lower part of these glasses and ye button must be solid mettall and all the rets I usually have to be blown thicker than usually especially the feet must be strong.” This is a reproduction of an artifact found at Jamestown and dating from the last quarter of the 17th century.

BEER GLASS

A glass of this design appears in the sketches of John Greene, a member of the Glass Sellers Company. The sketch dated 1667-73, is accompanied by a text stating, “3 dozen plaine for beer, The lower part of these glasses and ye button must be solid mettall and all the rets I would have to be blown thicker than usually especially the feet must be strong.” This is a reproduction of an artifact found at Jamestown and dating from the last quarter of the 17th century.

BEER GLASS

A glass of this design appears in the sketches of John Greene, a member of the Glass Sellers Company. The sketch dated 1667-73, is accompanied by a text stating, “3 dozen plaine for beer, The lower part of these glasses and ye button must be solid mettall and all the rets I would have to be blown thicker than usually especially the feet must be strong.” This is a reproduction of an artifact found at Jamestown and dating from the last quarter of the 17th century.

BEER GLASS

A glass of this design appears in the sketches of John Greene, a member of the Glass Sellers Company. The sketch dated 1667-73, is accompanied by a text stating, “3 dozen plaine for beer, The lower part of these glasses and ye button must be solid mettall and all the rets I would have to be blown thicker than usually especially the feet must be strong.” This is a reproduction of an artifact found at Jamestown and dating from the last quarter of the 17th century.

BEER GLASS

A glass of this design appears in the sketches of John Greene, a member of the Glass Sellers Company. The sketch dated 1667-73, is accompanied by a text stating, “3 dozen plaine for beer, The lower part of these glasses and ye button must be solid mettall and all the rets I would have to be blown thicker than usually especially the feet must be strong.” This is a reproduction of an artifact found at Jamestown and dating from the last quarter of the 17th century.

BEER GLASS

A glass of this design appears in the sketches of John Greene, a member of the Glass Sellers Company. The sketch dated 1667-73, is accompanied by a text stating, “3 dozen plaine for beer, The lower part of these glasses and ye button must be solid mettall and all the rets I would have to be blown thicker than usually especially the feet must be strong.” This is a reproduction of an artifact found at Jamestown and dating from the last quarter of the 17th century.

BEER GLASS

A glass of this design appears in the sketches of John Greene, a member of the Glass Sellers Company. The sketch dated 1667-73, is accompanied by a text stating, “3 dozen plaine for beer, The lower part of these glasses and ye button must be solid mettall and all the rets I would have to be blown thicker than usually especially the feet must be strong.” This is a reproduction of an artifact found at Jamestown and dating from the last quarter of the 17th century.

BEER GLASS

A glass of this design appears in the sketches of John Greene, a member of the Glass Sellers Company. The sketch dated 1667-73, is accompanied by a text stating, “3 dozen plaine for beer, The lower part of these glasses and ye button must be solid mettall and all the rets I would have to be blown thicker than usually especially the feet must be strong.” This is a reproduction of an artifact found at Jamestown and dating from the last quarter of the 17th century.

BEER GLASS

A glass of this design appears in the sketches of John Greene, a member of the Glass Sellers Company. The sketch dated 1667-73, is accompanied by a text stating, “3 dozen plaine for beer, The lower part of these glasses and ye button must be solid mettall and all the rets I would have to be blown thicker than usually especially the feet must be strong.” This is a reproduction of an artifact found at Jamestown and dating from the last quarter of the 17th century.