

BRANDY SHOT GLASS

This shot glass is a reproduction of a small beaker found at Jamestown. It was used for holding brandy or other spirits. Three-fourths of the original beaker was recovered. Four raspberry prunts decorate its sides. These prunts are believed to have been practical as well as decorative by helping the user grip the glass more firmly. This piece dates from the late 17th century.

BRANDY SHOT GLASS

This shot glass is a reproduction of a small beaker found at Jamestown. It was used for holding brandy or other spirits. Three-fourths of the original beaker was recovered. Four raspberry prunts decorate its sides. These prunts are believed to have been practical as well as decorative by helping the user grip the glass more firmly. This piece dates from the late 17th century.

BRANDY SHOT GLASS

This shot glass is a reproduction of a small beaker found at Jamestown. It was used for holding brandy or other spirits. Three-fourths of the original beaker was recovered. Four raspberry prunts decorate its sides. These prunts are believed to have been practical as well as decorative by helping the user grip the glass more firmly. This piece dates from the late 17th century.

BRANDY SHOT GLASS

This shot glass is a reproduction of a small beaker found at Jamestown. It was used for holding brandy or other spirits. Three-fourths of the original beaker was recovered. Four raspberry prunts decorate its sides. These prunts are believed to have been practical as well as decorative by helping the user grip the glass more firmly. This piece dates from the late 17th century.

BRANDY SHOT GLASS

This shot glass is a reproduction of a small beaker found at Jamestown. It was used for holding brandy or other spirits. Three-fourths of the original beaker was recovered. Four raspberry prunts decorate its sides. These prunts are believed to have been practical as well as decorative by helping the user grip the glass more firmly. This piece dates from the late 17th century.

BRANDY SHOT GLASS

This shot glass is a reproduction of a small beaker found at Jamestown. It was used for holding brandy or other spirits. Three-fourths of the original beaker was recovered. Four raspberry prunts decorate its sides. These prunts are believed to have been practical as well as decorative by helping the user grip the glass more firmly. This piece dates from the late 17th century.

BRANDY SHOT GLASS

This shot glass is a reproduction of a small beaker found at Jamestown. It was used for holding brandy or other spirits. Three-fourths of the original beaker was recovered. Four raspberry prunts decorate its sides. These prunts are believed to have been practical as well as decorative by helping the user grip the glass more firmly. This piece dates from the late 17th century.

BRANDY SHOT GLASS

This shot glass is a reproduction of a small beaker found at Jamestown. It was used for holding brandy or other spirits. Three-fourths of the original beaker was recovered. Four raspberry prunts decorate its sides. These prunts are believed to have been practical as well as decorative by helping the user grip the glass more firmly. This piece dates from the late 17th century.

BRANDY SHOT GLASS

This shot glass is a reproduction of a small beaker found at Jamestown. It was used for holding brandy or other spirits. Three-fourths of the original beaker was recovered. Four raspberry prunts decorate its sides. These prunts are believed to have been practical as well as decorative by helping the user grip the glass more firmly. This piece dates from the late 17th century.